MEDICINAL.

ACCIDENTAL?

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death on the man who fell from the window ledge on which he had fallen asleep. But the death was really due to carelessness which made the accident possible. There are a great many lives suddenly terminated as a result of carelessness, although the medical certificate may read "heart failure." When a man takes chances with his stomach and neglects the warning symptoms of disease, he is carelessly inviting calamity.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition. It enables the perfect digestion and assimilation of food, which makes strength. It stimulates the liver, cures biliousness and removes bilious impurities from the blood.

"I had been troubled with a pain in lower part of my stomach for three years, so severe I thought it would kill me in time," writes Mr. Aaron Van Dam, of (Kensington) 242 17th St., Chicago, Ill. "I could hardly work. It felt like a big weight hanging on me and got so bad that I had to take medicine. I used Soma's Bitters for a time, but it did me no good so I wrote to Dr. R. V. Pierce for advice, which he gave me immediately. I followed his directions and used two bottles of his medicine and was cured. I had a torpid liver which was troubling me instead of cramps (as I thought), so Dr. Pierce told me I have pleasure in living now; have gained in weight 15 pounds since then."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They do not hurt the pill habit.

DANIEL'S TRIBUTE TO LEE.

A thousand people gathered in Immanuel Baptist Tabernacle, Baltimore, last night and listened attentively for nearly two hours to the lecture of Senator John W. Daniel, upon "Thoughts of Robert E. Lee." The audience was enthusiastic and many times interrupted the speaker with deafening applause.

Senator Daniel was introduced by Rev. Dr. C. Madison Peters, the pastor. The Senator said in part:

"While my friend, Dr. Peters, has been traveling south I have been traveling north, and I am delighted that we happen to come together in such a delightful city as Baltimore. In my youth none could have been more anxious to reach Baltimore and I spent four years in a vain endeavor. At the same time I may observe that many of those who smile at my remark were trying to get from here to Richmond, but somehow loitered on the way three or four years. Permit me to say, although metaphor is not exactly suitable to use in a church, honors were about even."

"It is my privilege to speak to you of one who through many trials, vicissitudes and tribulations proved himself a perfect man. The world has long since recognized that he is unsurpassed in excellence of character."

"In the nineteenth century there appeared in the front rank of history five great military commanders—Napoleon, Wellington, Von Moltke, Grant and Robert E. Lee. The Little Corporal of Corsica, who would have jerked himself with his own hand, was famous for his prodigious intellectual achievements, which astonished the world of arms, but with all his ability he made a colossal error. As surely as enlightened judgment of mankind has awarded to Napoleon Bonaparte military pre-eminence, so does it award to Robert E. Lee pre-eminence of manly virtue. Not more surely than sparks fly upward or the sun returns after night has gone will there come a time when every countryman will recognize that in the person of Robert E. Lee was a perfect American and a perfect man."

"We are all familiar with his form and features. Works of art have given us his countenance and history his dexterity and courage in campaign and battle. I propose to speak of what Lee thought more than of what Lee did."

"No happier home than his was there in America. In its simple Doric columns, halls and chambers adorned with the portraits of the fathers of the country was an ideal home for a lover of hearth and family. So situated was Colonel Lee in 1861 on the verge of that great revolution which shook the country from end to end. We cannot estimate the sacrifice he made to take up arms against the union or the flames of action which promoted his course."

"Colonel Lee was distinctly a union man and Virginia a union State. He loved the people of his kindred blood. His life had been spent until then in the service of his country and two of his sons held commands in the army. He was born in the same county and descended from the same old English blood as Washington, and with Washington as his example of manhood he worshipped his character with the fullness of his whole being. Many professional years of his life had been spent in a northern community and he well understood the resources of that great section. When men spoke to him of coming war he would reply: 'We are Americans.'"

"Each side at that time grossly underestimated and grossly misunderstood the other. No people well informed made a greater mistake than the North in undervaluing the South, unless it was the South in undervaluing the North."

"The North and South in their meeting in that war remind me of the two Irishmen who met one day. 'How are you, Pat?' said one. 'How are you, Mike?' said the other. 'But I'm not Pat,' answered the first. 'And I'm not Mike,' said the other. 'Faith,' said the first, 'you took me for Pat and I took you for Mike, but, bejabbers, it's neither of us.'"

"Shortly before the war one of Lee's soldiers asked him what to do in case of war being declared. 'Stick to your colors,' replied the Colonel. While he held the commission of colonel in his native State no man was ever truer to his country than Lee. The States acted for themselves; the North for themselves, and Virginia for herself. Robert E. Lee took his place beside his kindred, his children, his home. No stronger tie is there than that which binds to home and kindred."

"I cannot refer to Lee without also to his great companion and friend, Stonewall Jackson."

"Never two men in the world were such great complements and supplements of each other. Never two men who had more admiration for each other."

Uncle Sam says it's all right

Uncle Sam, in the person of ten of his government officials, is always in charge of every department of our distillery. During the entire process of distillation, after the whiskey is stored in barrels in our warehouses, during the seven years it remains there, from the very grain we buy to the whiskey you get, Uncle Sam is constantly on the watch. We dare not take a gallon of our own whiskey from our own warehouse unless he says it is all right. And when he does say so, that whiskey goes directly to you, with all its original strength, rich taste and flavor, carrying a UNITED STATES REGISTERED DISTILLER'S GUARANTEE OF PURITY AND AGE, and saving the dealers' enormous profits. That's why HAYNER WHISKEY is the best for medicinal purposes. That's why it is preferred for other uses. That's why we have over a quarter of a million satisfied customers. That's why YOU should try it. Your money back if you're not satisfied.

over a mathematical problem. He was asked to do the problem and did it.

"Next day the General overheard or of the young officers say that he had a strange dream the night before. Lee remarked that it the young man discussed mathematical problems at midnight with a stone jug and two tin cups as unknown quantities he was likely to have strange dreams."

"The most casual observer who looked upon Lee, no matter what clothing he might have worn, would have said: 'There stands Nature's commander-in-chief.'"

"His personality was as remarkable as that of Napoleon. He was a great reader and digested what he read with reflection. His mind was as firm as that of Washington."

"How worshipfully we welcome God's grandest work, an unselfish, brave, thinking, upright man such as Lee. In refusing fortunes in North, East, South and West and going to train the youth as president of Washington College he displayed his generous, upright, beautiful character. There he lived a life as high as when he led his thin and wasting line or slept upon fields that were to be drenched in blood on the morrow."

"The very sorrows that overhung his life seem to bloom with celestial beauty in the hearts of the multitude of those who revere his memory."
